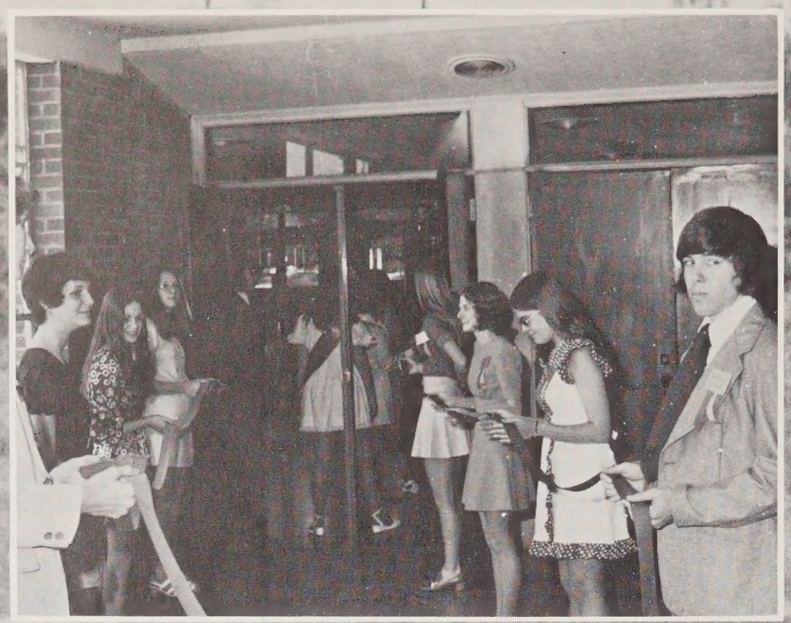
SPRING FANTASY

The long hours of arduous preparation and mounting expectation were lavishly rewarded with Spring Fantasy at last year's Junior-Senior. A decor of pastoral serenity clashed with lots of far-out rock and roll noise to produce a pleasant evening.



GRADUATION

June the first, nineteen seventy-three, marked the climax for some two hundred odd seniors at Lexington Senior High School. The ten junior marshals, selected on the basis of scholastic achievement, greeted parents at the Senior Assembly and escorted the robed graduates at Graduation exercises. The eleven alternate marshals held ribbons to guide the seniors into the auditorium.

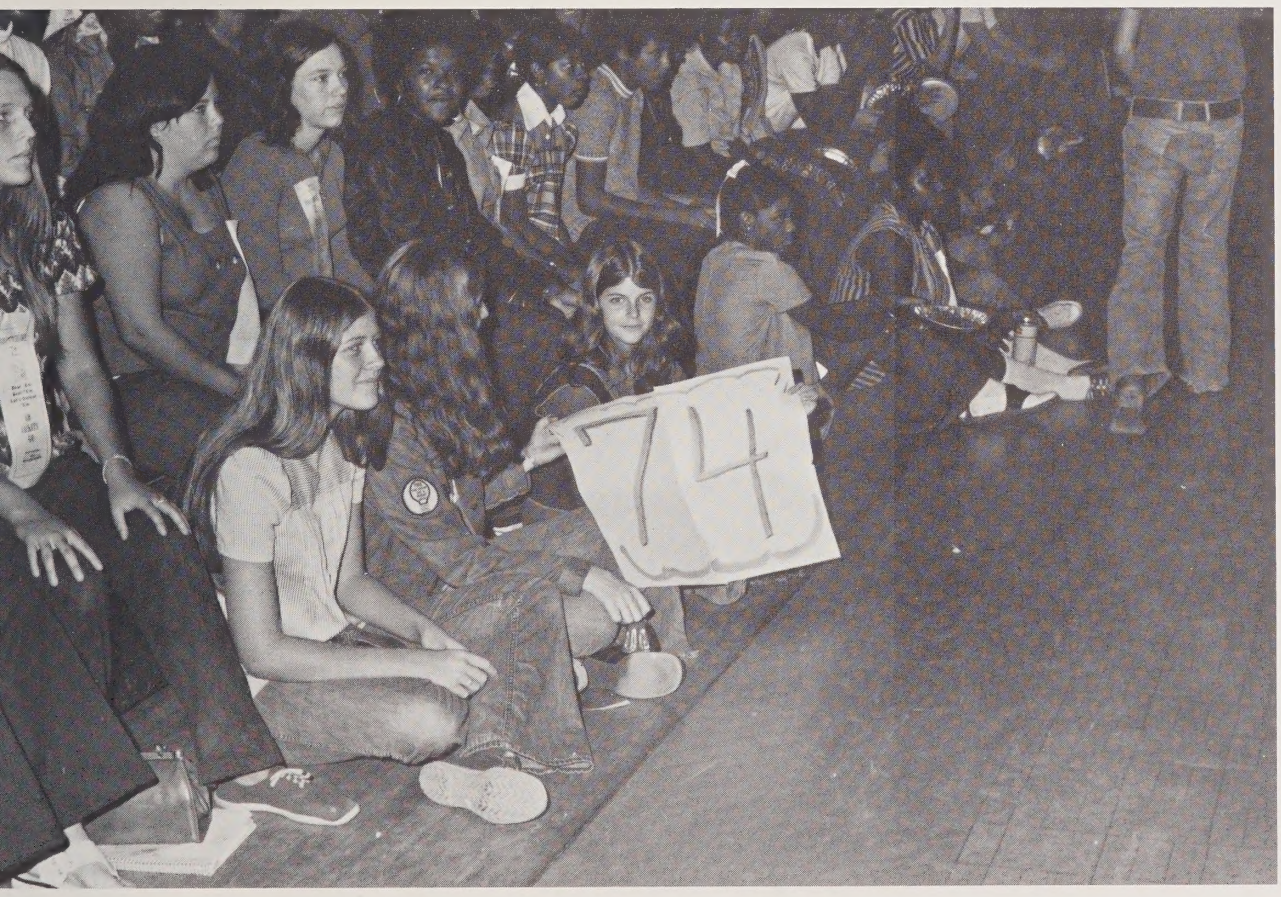
Plays and playing—but not much. A little fun, but not too much of that either. Six classes a day—five days a week—and then nine weeks. Pretty soon it's all gone.



"FILING"

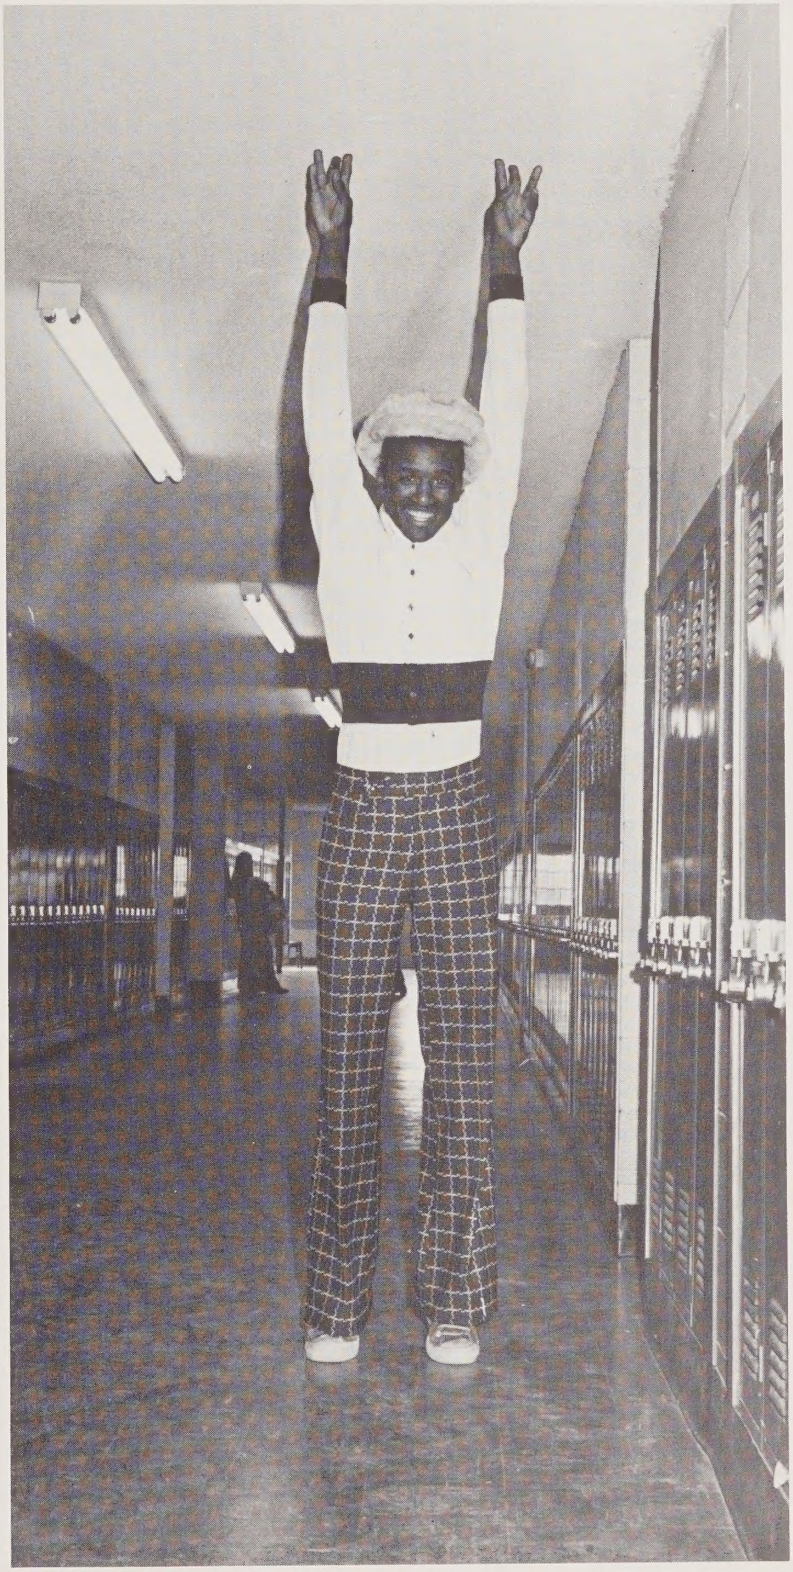
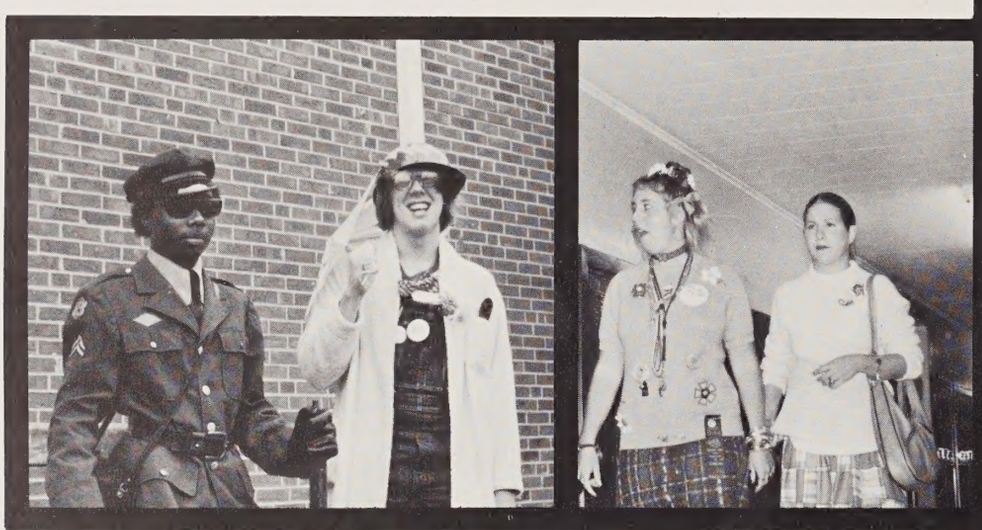
Contrary to widespread public opinion, football is not the most popular sport at Lexington Senior High. Nor is basketball. Nope, the most popular sport at "old LHS" is a little number called "filing." A difficult and complex art, "filing" must be practiced for years and years before one can even begin to master it. On these pages we would like to honor some of the better Lexington filers.



By the way, it has been suggested in some quarters that next year Lexington should begin a girl's filing team. Many think that, led by Ann Welborn (who some say could even play on the boy's team) the girls could field a very competitive unit. File on, as they say.

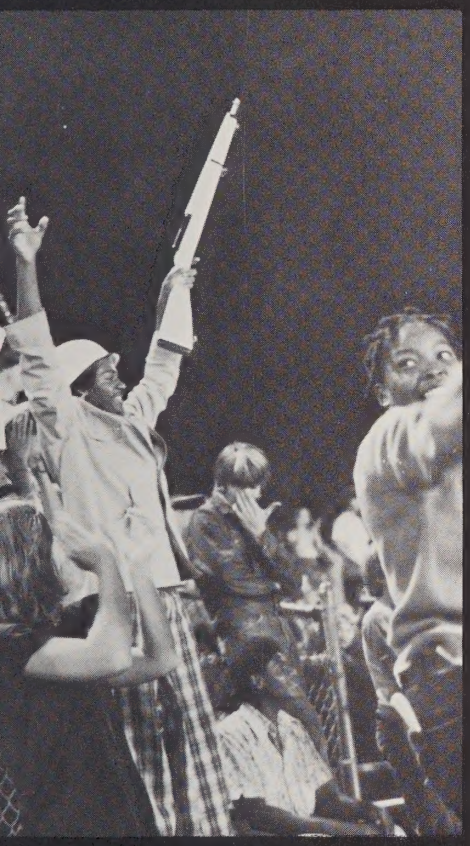
JACQUES VAROOM COMES HOME
(A Homecoming Story)

Since his departure from high school, Jacques Varoom had squandered his life away in divine delicacy: dining with voluptuous women, gambling with gloved hustlers, generally carousing with fools. Once upon a time as he sunk to his bed in a bankrupt sigh, he reviewed the later years of his life from a personal standpoint. His memory focused on the valedictory address delivered at his graduation: "We are now ready to face the world maturely." The words droned monotonously in his ears as they had when first uttered, grinding into his soul as a chisel pecks at a mountain.



III

Then suddenly, Jacques' eyes flashed lightning. "I shall do it!" he screamed from within his frenzy. "I shall return to my native habitat, the land of Homecoming Queens and Football Players! I shall again subject myself to the idle pleasures I once enjoyed! For joy, for joy!" Straightway he forwarded a telegraph to his hometown notifying the denizens of his arrival: "Am returning sometime on the evening of Friday a week. Signed, Jacques Varoom." During the week that followed, Jacques occupied himself with the shrewd neglect of his gambling debts. His mastery of disguise enabled him to escape the unmerciful hustling villains. Meanwhile, in Hometown, every highschoolster made preparations for the return of the native. A spectacular football game was conceived by four shifty gents who pondered diligently on the Homecoming while quaffing in a dark alley.



HOMECOMING 1973

II

"I must do something to relieve myself of this burden," Jacques determined, summarizing his complex emotions. "I have been a traitor to my graduating class. I have not faced the world maturely but hedonistically. Oh, woe for maturity!" While he recognized his tragic flaw aloud, he was silently reminding himself, "I shall be mature."

IV

The resulting plans were quite eloquent, and when they were announced at the high school, all the attendants responded favorably. The eager rascals ate, drank, made merry and decorated the week long. A tawdry gallery of "projects" ensued. As a last preparation, every fashion-conscious individual donned his finest attire, painting the site with utmost gaiety. Finally Friday came, and with it, Jacques Varoom and his empty suitcase (for gambling had left him possessionless). He was heralded by the adoration and praise of all his Hometown peers. The long-awaited festivity had begun, and Jacques gleefully forsook his pursuit of maturity.

Homecoming Week Highlights

Monday, as you all recall, was Lick 'Em Day; however, we could find no suckers to pose before our pervasive camera. Nor do we offer remnants of Color Day since our pages could not record the garish colors which painted that special Wednesday. Tacky Day, the unbuttoning of the tight dress code, catalyzed a reaction of coup d'etat. Meanwhile, civilians labored diligently preparing club exhibits. The legendary Powder Puff Football Game found Karen Smith and Doug (pronounced dug) Drum conducting the congregation of seniors in a prayer for victory. They were answered affirmatively; the seniors quashed the foes, 8-0.

Homeroom Decoration—Player Appreciation Day (which may have been easily confused with Tacky Day) unveiled hidden talents in LSHS individuals: art, interior design, and cookery (pouring cokes and arranging donuts). The hour of Homecoming was drawing nigh. After a maximum amount of practice, the Band donned their costumes and playing abilities to achieve a perfect dress rehearsal. Early Friday morning the Heads staged a Pep Rally, where the fiery mobs who beckoned the arrival of Homecoming were constrained by a few potent dissenters. Homecoming came, nevertheless.

. . . Homecoming Game Highlights . . .
(from outside the fieldhouse and inside the fieldhouse)

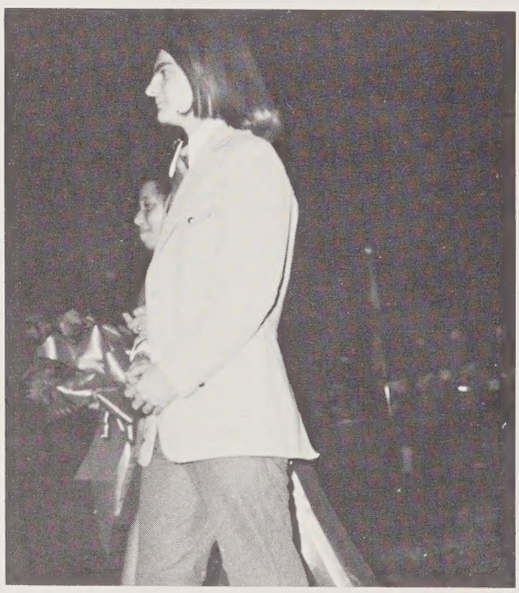
AHH, THE BIG NIGHT fell and the Philpott Memorial Stadium was cluttered with sundry fans who overzealously awaited the commencement of the Homecoming Football Game. Crowds from Lexington and Salisbury sandwiched the field and, as the players flowed out, raised their voices in competitive cheers and chants. Throughout the first two quarters the ravings of Lexington's audience sank to nervous murmurs as the Jackets slid into a 7-0 slump. Nevertheless, the traditional half time ceremony, which to many held more significance than did the game it interpolated, restored the faltering spirits of the huge gang. Sparkling young ladies who reeked of Max Factor decorated the field with their charm. Miss Carmen Pearson was determined the "cream of the crop" and appropriately crowned Homecoming Queen (a quite coveted title). Meanwhile, life inside the fieldhouse was somewhat more solemn. In an exclusive interview, guard Fred Cecil reported, "Oh, it was like any other half time. Just put down we weren't discouraged or something like that." Anyway (harumph) the game resumed and ended in an astonishing score of 14-13 in favor of the Lexington Yellow Jackets.



Jacques Varoom Comes Home
Epilog

Jacques Varoom left Hometown with a totally new outlook on life. He had realized the validity of the proverb, "If you can't find your heart's desire in your own back yard, you never had one in the first place." And now, with coins in his pockets (donated by benevolent Hometowners) and pictures of his high school cohorts in his travel-worn valise, he was ready to develop into manhood. He felt that, having successfully accomplished his prodigal return, he had laid a solid foundation upon which he might rebuild the remainder of his life.

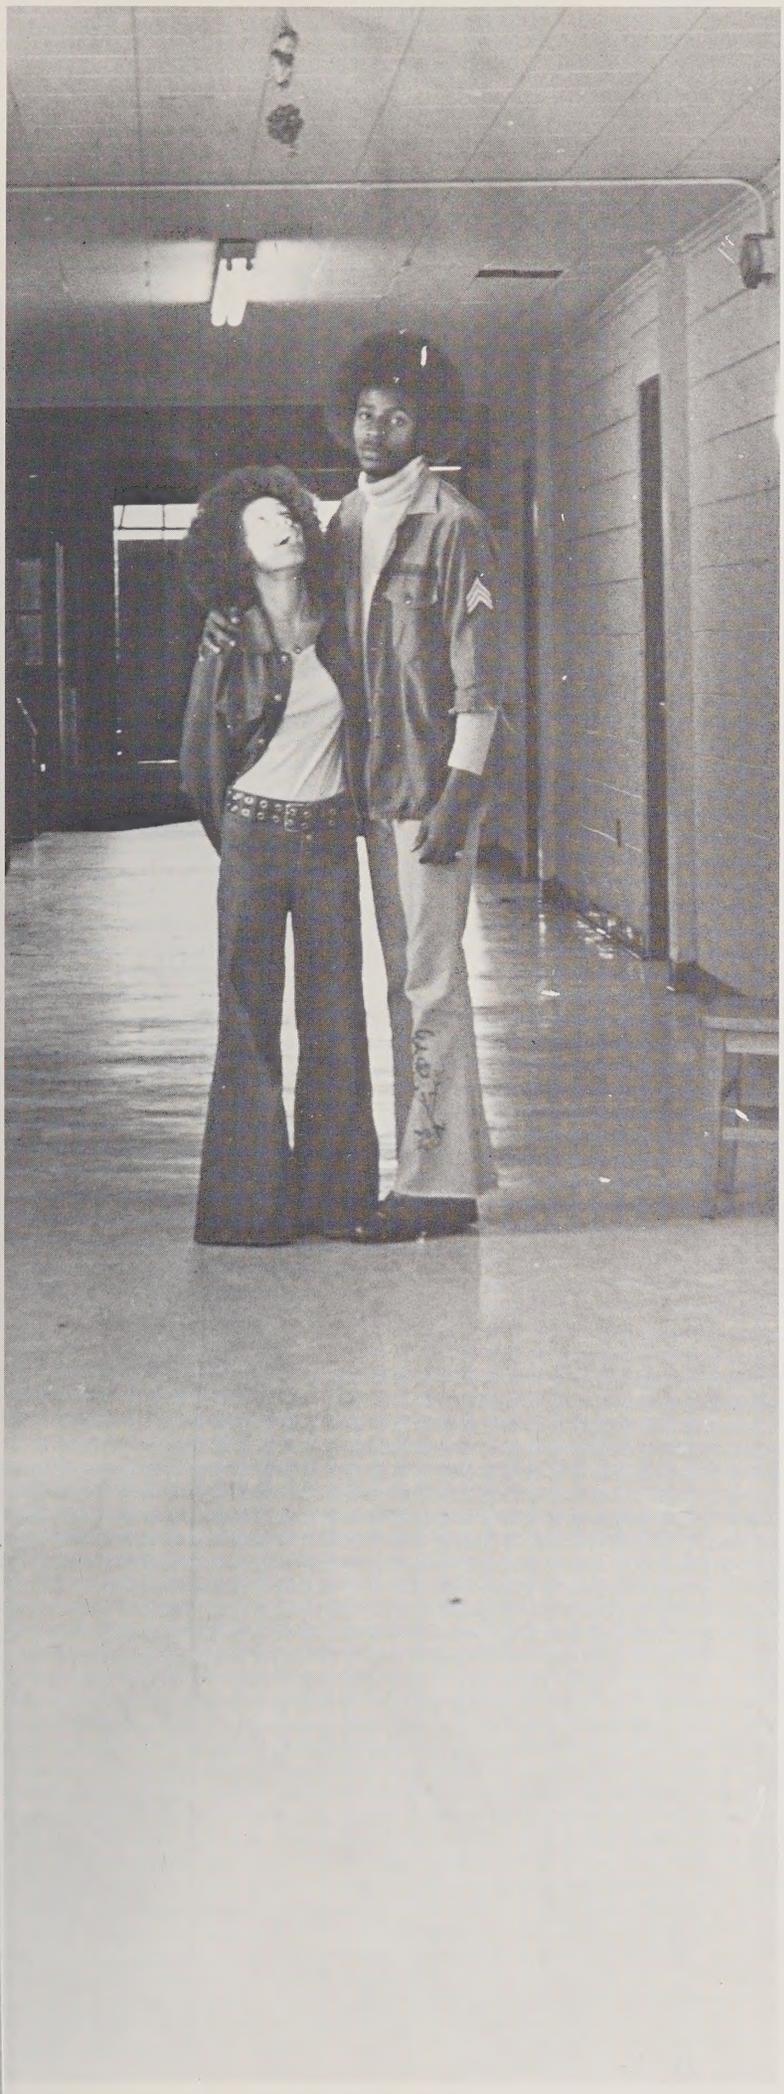
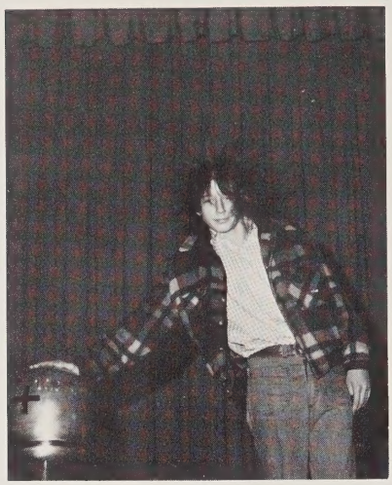
CHRISTMAS 1973

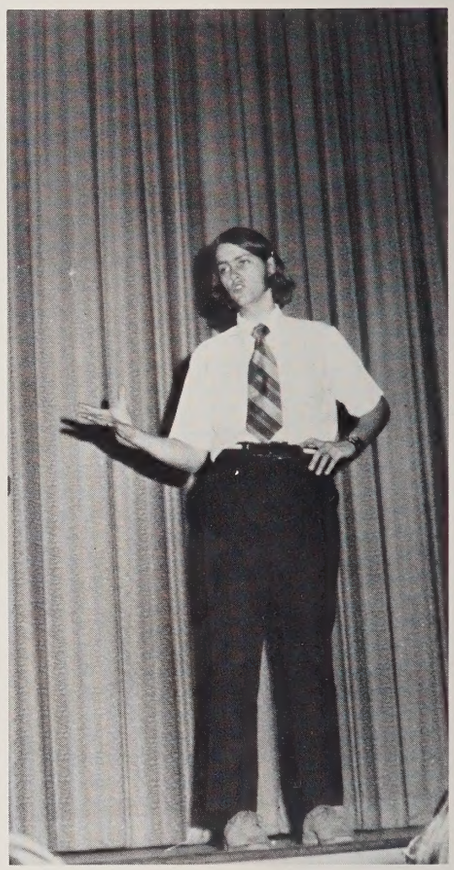


In the light of the winter energy shortage, downtown Lexington's Christmas street decorations hung unlit most of the holiday season. Although Christmas lost some of the artificial dazzle of blinking colored lights, the genuine Christmas spirit of giving glowed in the heart of every kid who opened a present on Christmas morning.

An early snowfall sparked excitement in the air, and the long awaited Christmas vacation was a refreshing relief from classes. But as every good movie has an end, the holidays also ended, and some 900 students came back to Senior High anxious for their Easter vacation.

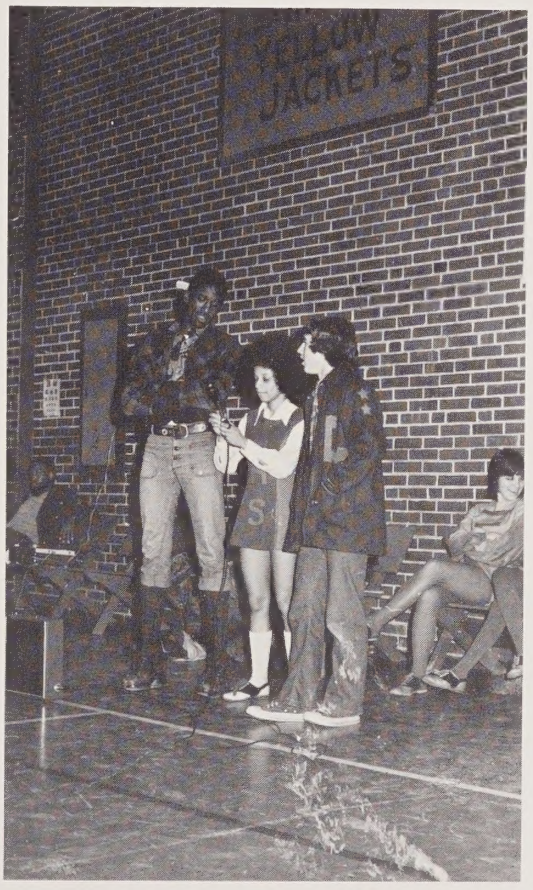
SPECIAL EVENTS





A Moving Experience

LHS was endowed with many special events this year. One by one, Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores filed into the auditorium for the first big assembly of the year, Tacky Day. Not long after that came the annual college night in which students from all over the county visited representatives of the college of their choice. Nan Tate and Robin Remsburg filled in the student body on their respective trips to Brazil and Belgium. The Vagabond Players put on a production for the students and proved to be good in bringing Paul Green alive. Then there was the unforgettable assembly on Atomic Energy that was quite shocking for some. The annual sports assembly, both fall and spring, added to the agenda of events. Pep rallies were held for both football and basketball seasons; some were quite hilarious. The unforgettable piano player, Georgi Riabicoff, captivated many students with his quick playing.



WEEKEND ACTIVITIES

"Listen, Buster, you can carry your own bags."

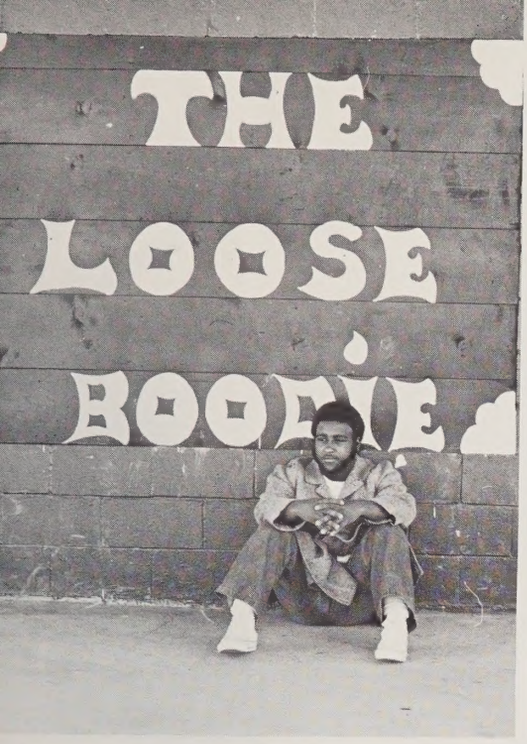
Don't let that confident smile fool you.

What's it gonna be this week-end, Darrell?

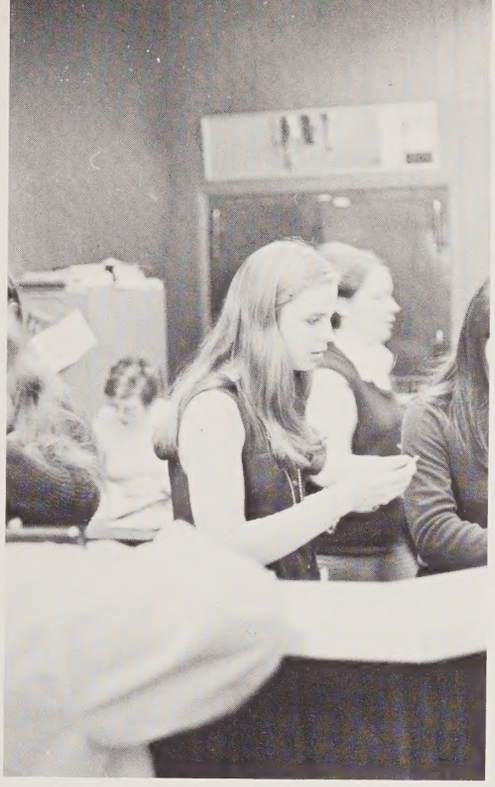
A glimpse of Lexington's ever-popular Main Street.

"Our Gang" or the "Little Rascals"?

Lea's concentration gives her the upper hand in the game.



Norman goes early to beat the crowd.



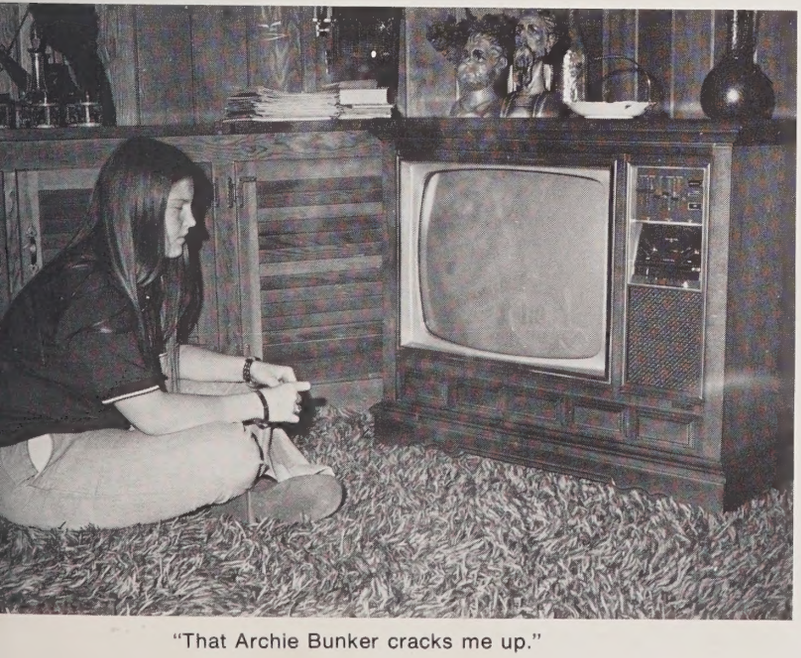
Kathy prepares to change a $100 bill.

"Let the girls pay this time."

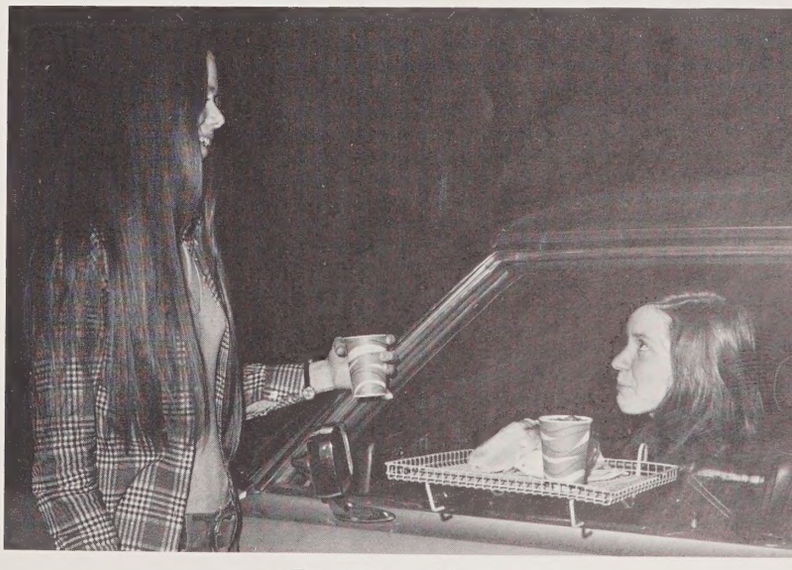
The Women's Liberation Society discuss their game plan.

"Big Deb" prefers a quiet evening studying to a night on the town.

"We could make a meal out of this stuff."



"That Archie Bunker cracks me up."



"Eat, drink, and be merry."

LEXINGTON LOSES TWO GREAT COACHES

For many years Coach Presnell Mull and Coach V. G. Price have lent outstanding leadership in football, basketball, wrestling, and track and field. Even though they have earned enviable statistical records, their greatest contribution to Lexington Senior High School has been guidance to all students, whether they participate in athletics or not. Coach Mull and Coach Price have had as much influence on the lives and ideals of Lexington youth as anyone else in the community's history. Anyone who has had the pleasure of being associated with these men has been deeply affected by the wisdom they impart. It is therefore with the deepest respect, the most sincere admiration, and the most abundant appreciation that the students of Lexington Senior High School say, "Thank you."

Third row: Bill Fritts, Jim Toscoe, Joe Phillips, Kieth Hughes, Chip Burkhart, Ed Leonard, Tom Wall, Rick Sommers, Eric Disher, Grover Roberts.

Training Staff

The Lexington Yellow Jackets enjoyed a vivacious season this year. As if in preparation for the agonizing Kannapolis defeat, they charged ferociously through their first three games mutilating Central Davidson (27-18), obliterating North Davidson (28-6), and eradicating Trinity (39-0). The fire of their fury was quenched by their tragic loss to Kannapolis (47-0). However, in a week's time their sparks were rekindled, and the next Friday night they cremated Asheboro (19-7). Their hot streak sizzled on to fry Statesville (21-10) and broil Salisbury in the Homecoming Spectacular (14-13). They were quelled, however, by angry Albemarle (41-39), snuffed by Concord (14-13), and finally extinguished by the Thomasvillains (28-19).

This year's Lexington Senior High Yellow Jackets, under the productive coaching of Vinnon Williams, brought home the first South Piedmont Conference championship in twenty-five years. High scorer for the year, Carlos Terry, led the cagers through a tremendous season with a personal score of over 280. Marc Frye, Harold Peoples, and Rick Sommers also were well over the 200 mark. Defense was sharp with, once again, Carlos Terry leading with an average of 10 blocked shots a game and around 20 rebounds.

In their first year on the courts, Lexington's girls basketball team, coached by Mrs. Derree Beusse, although plagued by inexperience and lack of depth, put on a promising season's play. The potential exemplified by these girls, especially in spirit, has kindled a flickering hope for next year's team.

The Lexington Senior High boys' tennis team hopes to continue their fantastic 85-game win streak this season. They have gone undefeated for the last six years. They have been conference champions for six years, W.N.C.H.S.A.A. champions for five years, and state champions for four years. With the graduation of six out of the top eight from last year, the going will be tougher this year. Rick Sommers, Marc Frye, and Joe Phillips will be among the returning lettermen. The 1974 schedule includes the other South Piedmont schools plus Shelby, High Point Central, and High Point Andrews.

Lexington Senior High's own Anne Camelyn Timberlake has gone far this year in her tennis career. Modesty prevents Camey from detailing a full account of her accomplishments. Eighteen and under girl's singles and doubles; state women's singles, doubles and mixed doubles; and an amazing showing in the international Four Roses Tournament are just a few of Camey's victorious showings.

Eight nervous seniors await the next question in the final elimination.

HI I.Q. BOWL TEAM

After three sessions of mind racking competition and elimination, the faculty selection committee decided on the L.S.H.S.'s HI I.Q. BOWL TEAM for 1974. The team members are Kim Church, John Skipper, Tom Lawrence, Tommy Owen, and Johnny Wike, captain—photograph at right.

The first round elimination was open to anyone wishing to try out with juniors contributing test questions and grading the written tests. Questions ranged through the fields of math, English, science, social studies, and humanities. The pressure and competition became harder during the later rounds of elimination—photograph at bottom right.

The year started with a get-acquainted party and the election of officers. These officers received training in parliamentary procedure at an officers' workshop in Winston-Salem and were later installed in a formal candlelight ceremony. The club's homecoming banner won first place in the small banner division. Members then participated in the DECA District 5A activities including contests, politicking, workshops, dinners, and an awards assembly. After their Christmas social, they began working on the N. C. DECA activities. Their final project was a Bosses' Breakfast in May.

FOURTH PICTURE: Vickie Stevenson, Vickie Powell, Mike Melton, Vickie Fine.

The year began with a cookout at Finch Park with hamburgers, volleyball, and lots of fun. Ice Capades '73 was next on the agenda with a trip to Greensboro to see Snoopy and all his friends. The club's homecoming exhibit won first place in its division. Projects sponsored by V.I.C.A. included selling candy to raise money and a haircut demonstration by local barbers on December 2. Christmas was a fun time with a party at Mr. Pope's house with plenty of food, music, and cards. Other activities included a trip to Raleigh on February 6, the District Meeting in March, and the State Meeting in May. Eddie Lohr, V.I.C.A. President, will go to the National Convention in San Antonio, Texas, in June. A beach trip in May ended the year.

SPANISH CLUB

Spanish Club really moved this year. Mr. Allen, the new sponsor, added much variety to the club. The first big project was a homecoming exhibit. Spanish Club fashioned the main ticket booth into a giant beehive. For Christmas the members made pinatas which were filled with candy and then broken. Other activities were a party after exams, a fund-raising project, and a Spanish dinner.

FRENCH CLUB

Under the direction of its new sponsor, Miss Slate, this year's French Club had a busy year. Their first project, a homecoming exhibit, won first prize in its division. To support the club, the members had a bake sale. Each month the club had a program plus an outside activity. Programs included speakers, films, and studies in French art and music. Highlights of the year were a fondue party, a French production of Cinderella, and a meal of French cuisine.

MONOGRAM CLUB

The members of the Monogram Club are students that have lettered in one or more school sports. This year the male athletes received letter jackets, and the girls were given blue sweaters. Some of the club members made repairs in the field house, while others worked on a banner for homecoming. The Monogram Club also sold football programs before every home game.

PEP CLUB

UPPER LEFT: First row: Kathleen Anderson, Sally Thomas, Linda Leonard. Second row: Debbie Bass, Ashley Phillips, Downey Hargrave, Debbie Micklich, Martha Philpott, Kathy Crowell. Third row: Joan Turlington, Pam Lanning, Carolyn Reece, Linda Spivey, Cindy Martin, Tammy Yarbrough, Amy Avery, Missy Wagner. BOTTOM RIGHT: First column: Rosemary Dalton, Kathy Moore, Kim Farabee, Debbi Gainor, Theresa Rhodes, Cathy MacDade. Second row: Mrs. Adams, Tom Danze. Third row: Cathy Callicutt, Martha Wilson, Doug Drum.

The Pep Club of Senior High strives to build spirit in the student body. During homecoming week, they worked hard on an award-winning banner. They also decorated the homecoming queen's arch.

One of the club's main jobs was to serve sandwiches to the football players after the games. The largest project of the Pep Club was to sponsor Parent-Player Night. The members also made spirit posters for upcoming games.

KEY CLUB

The Key Club is one of the leading service clubs at Lexington Senior High School. Projects this year included: raking leaves for the elderly, selling programs at home basketball games, collecting for various charities, and working for the Salvation Army during Christmas. Probably the most worthwhile project each year is the slave auction where the members are sold to various Kiwanians. Most of the proceeds go towards sending handicapped children to Camp Easter in-the-Pines.

When not working on projects, the boys have been known to hold joint meetings with their female allies the Keyettes, or attend the weekly meetings of the Kiwanis Club. Last year the club was able to send two delegates to the Key Club International Convention in Chicago. This adventure proved to be most rewarding in that the information brought home helped to strenghten the club. The Key Club has certainly proved its part in supporting the Key Club theme of "Commit Yourself" by its worthwhile work in school and community activities.

KEYETTE CLUB

The newly formed Keyette Club, under the direction of Miss Sarah Slate and President Jo Banks, stayed busy during the year by performing various services for the community. The members participated in such activities as having a bake sale, helping the Salvation Army, and taking part in the Cancer Fund Drive. The most popular money-making project they sponsored was "The Ugliest Boy Contest." Four boys from each class ran for the title. The winners were determined by the amount of money the students gave for their first choice. Several dinner meetings were held during the year. The most popular of these was the gathering with their male cohorts, the Key Club. The Keyette Club is sure to have continued success in the future.

JAYTEENS

This year's Jayteens remember the foxy chicks who helped with Homecoming. With no money, the club got a little of Gibson's paint and constructed a "boogie" or two. Down in Mark's basement the pool sharks operated on "Company" time. Grandma contributed heavily. Other activities involved members in Jaycee projects and took members as guests to Jaycee meetings.

First row: Kathy Lee, Martha Wilson, Glenda Smith, Carol Baker, Keith Mashburn. Second row: Beverly Tucker, Gloria Stamey, Holly Wilson, Vickie Saraceno, Susan Tyree, Susan Sherron. Third row: Sandra Charles, Jessica Helvey, Joey Tilley, Betty McCrary, Tim Caldwell, Brian Fullbright, Mike Hardin. Fourth row: Mr. Moody, Ken Foster, Debbie Lanier, Toni Shoaf, Missy McGinn, Tim McCree, Ricky Mathewes. Fifth row: Chris Fritts, Rusty Ford, Marc Frye, Roger Moody, Jimmy Tate.

This year's Junior Civitans were really on the ball. The club participated in several Civitan conferences and meetings and represented Lexington well in doing so. Selling fruitcakes and nuts furnished the club with their operating capital. With this money, the Junior Civitans gave a Christmas party for the handicapped men at the Sheltered Work Shop. All in all, it has been a very fulfilling year.

HANDCRAFT CLUB

Third row: Carla Hill, Carolyn Gaddy, Judy Burgess, Sandra Hauser, Toni Shoaf. Fourth row: Tammy Yarbrough, Loyd Leonard.

SOCIETY OF FINE ARTS

The Society's fine activities for the 1974 school year consisted of the induction of new members. No name of any member is printed on this page (as you can well see); if you should want the identification of any member, just ask him.

DRAMA CLUB

The Drama Club presented two plays, TELL ME THAT YOU LOVE ME, JUNIE MOON and DARK OF THE MOON. Members attended workshops and college performances of plays. Many students worked on dramatic interpretations to present in various North Carolina competitions.

A.F.S.

The big project for A.F.S. was sponsoring this year's exchange student, Yoshiko Tadokoro. It received first place for decorating the large concession stand during homecoming. At Christmas, it gave food boxes to elderly people. In the spring, as usual, the club sponsored their annual A.F.S. weekend.

"A teacher affects eternity: he can never tell where his influence stops."

Henry Brooks Adams

IN APPRECIATION

Sweet, patient, always ready to help, she is a friend to all. Her glowing smile warms every soul it touches. In appreciation for her interest in students and her inspirational example, we honor Mrs. Jean Bowen.

In appreciation to Mr. Frank Clark — for the lectures in a crowded bus, the cigar smoke, the loyalty, the leadership. Under the rough exterior lies a heart as soft and loving as that of a newborn puppy. We honor you, Farmer Frank, for being you.

Executive guidance and administration were responsible for the smooth clockwork precision under which our school operated. Through school growing pains, the stress of Daylight Savings Time, and individual student problems, the supervisors, principals, and counselors always prevailed.

Even more so than in other classes student brains were exhausted in Math and Science. In Math, students were expected to ingest great amounts of geometric formulas or trigonometric logarithms. In Science, students had to remember numerous gas laws or innumerable unpronouncable muscles of sharks and cats. A difficult but educational time was had by all.

This year English students grappled with everything from Helvey's grammar tests to Chaucer's CANTERBURY TALES. In return for their fervent efforts they were treated to such delightful productions as HENRY IV, THE ORESTEIA, and THE CRUCIBLE, and a rather amateur rendition of ANDROCLES AND THE LION.

Two new teachers, Sarah Slate and Tom Allen, and one English teacher, Harold Cranford, conducted their respective French, Spanish, and German classes in foreign resuscitations almost impossible for the Southern tongue. Much emphasis was also placed on foreign cultures.

In Art and Music, LHS students were provided outlets for their repressed expression. Those creative expressions were then passed on to the student body in the form of musical concerts and art displays.

Varied athletic activities, including bowling, basketball, judo, and badminton, allowed students to physically release academic tension.

Eager sophomores, their hands on the steering wheel and their hopes on the all-important driver's license, quickly digested the driving tips and techniques offered by Frank King and Bill Bailey.

Even with their library a divided shambles, the invaluable librarians still managed to provide aid for frantic students who sought last minute resources for term papers.

In Special Education, individual students were given a chance to progress at their own rate under the guidance of William Shouse.

Opportunities for work experience were open to students in vocational education. In-school training included typing, shop work, and bookkeeping. 佳子

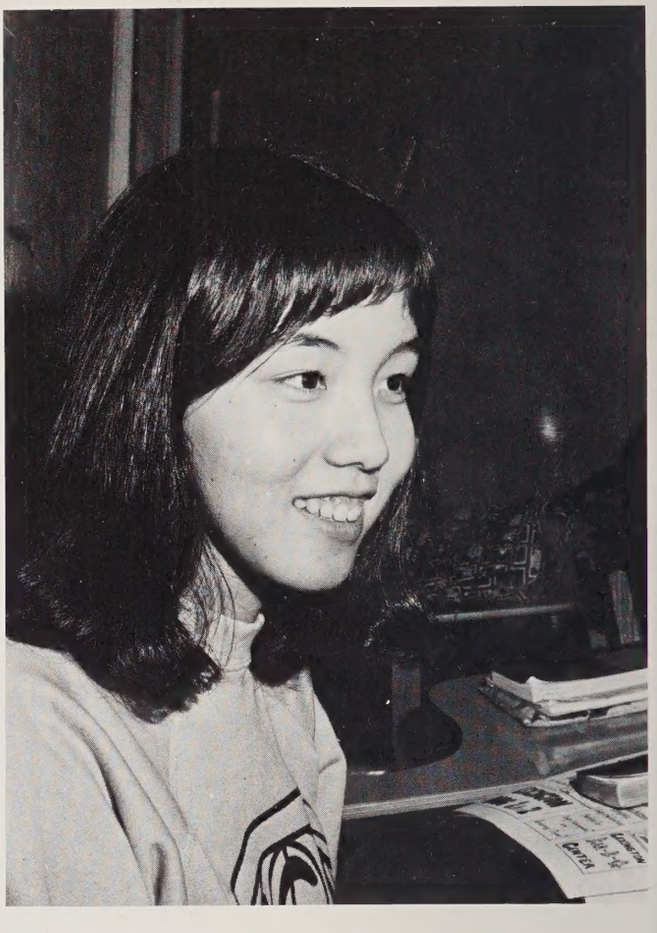
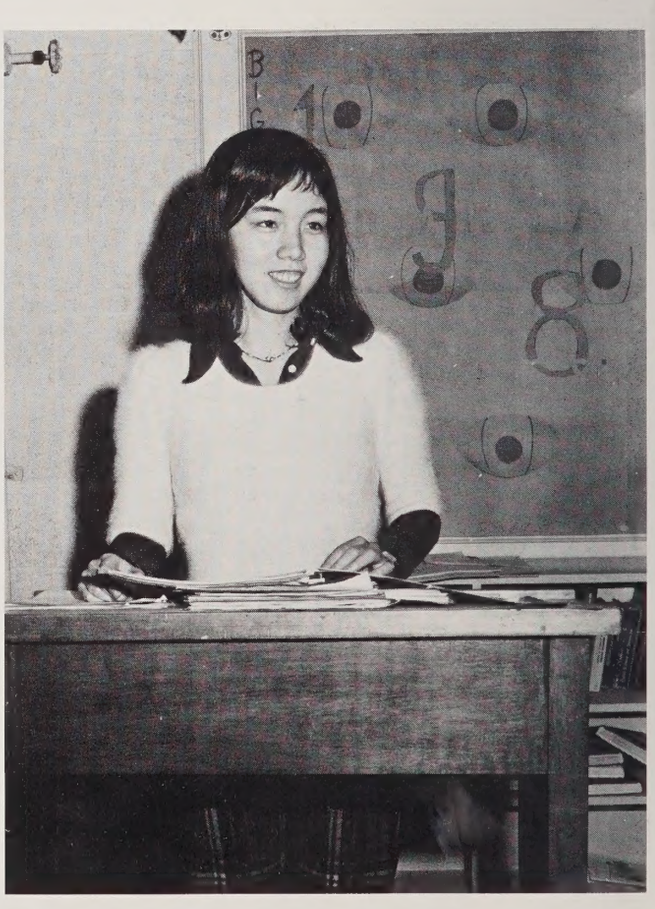
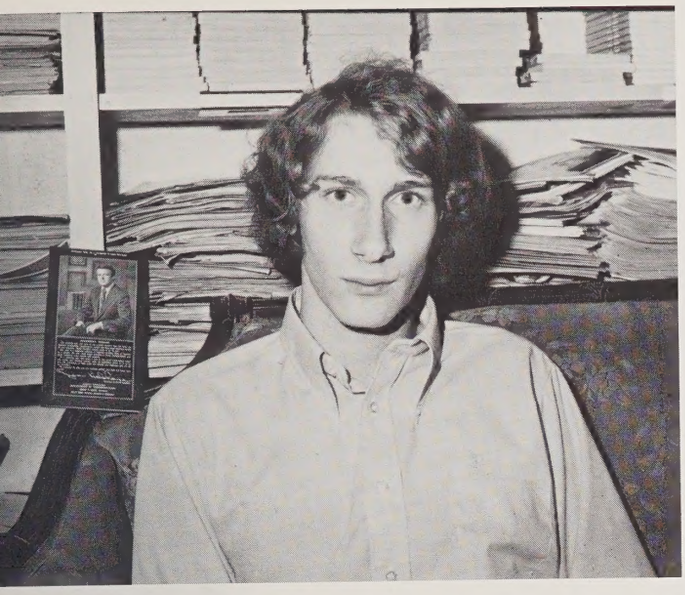
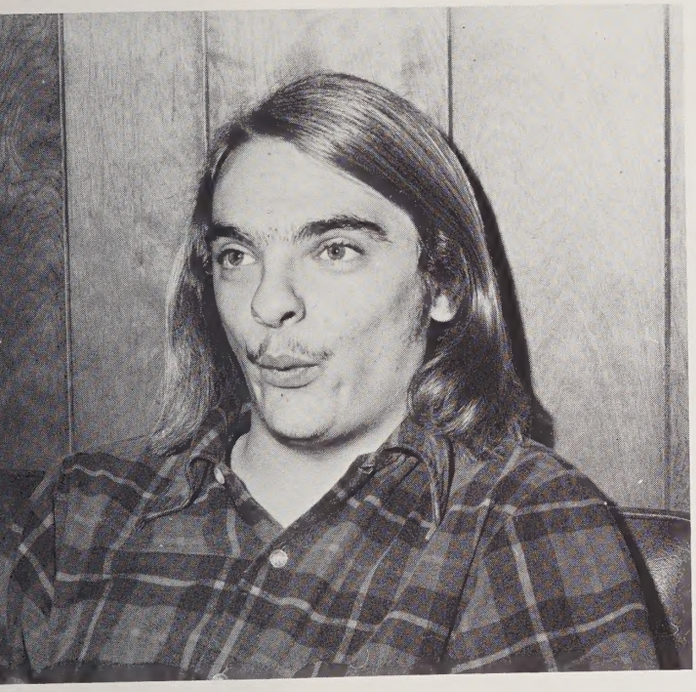
Yoshiko Tadokoro is Lexington Senior High's foreign exchange student. Her American parents are Mr. and Mrs. James T. Welborn. Yoshi came to us from Ideka, Osaka, Japan. She has been kept busy speaking at different clubs including the Optimist, Kiwanis, and AFS Clubs and the Charity League. Although her main interests do not include school work, she thoroughly enjoys the school life. When Yoshi returns home in June, she will attend Kobe College in Nishinomiya, Japan.





SENIOR AMBASSADORS





Several seniors had an exciting summer as they adventured across the state and around the world. Tim R. Byerly traveled to Boys' State at Wake Forest University. While there, Tim participated in a mock government with boys from all over the state.

Debbie Sheppard attended Girls' State at UNC-G. Her activities envolved writing a party platform, studying politics, and listening to a speech by Senator Sam Ervin. She was so impressed by Senator Ervin's speech that she instantly became a great fan of his.

John Skipper was selected to participate in the 1973 session of the N.C. Governor's School. The Governor's School is a summer program designed to introduce varied 20th century ideas and innovations to high school students. John's primary area of study was English.

Nan Tate ventured to Sao Jose De Rio Pardo, Brazil as a Summer Exchange student. Her Brazilian father's name was Vicente Ferreira Dias, Jr., a farmer. The most outstanding gains from her trip were the many people she met and the knowledge she gained from the experience.

Robin Remsburg's international excursion took her to Waterloo, Belgium. Her father was an engineer in Belgium; her family's name, Jonckheere. The chance to live in a different environment with a change in customs and language gave her a stimulating and enjoyable summer.

The last dying days of autumn captured my mind
as I watched with wonder the wrinkled leaves falling placidly to the ground.
I saw the sun dry up
the leaves saw them buried under brown layers of leaves that followed.

Days later as I watched with tears
a life sank to the ground
passed through the cycle of the sun.
Unlike the buried leaves
he was kept from the dark corners of my mind
by fond memories
by love.

You Certainly Have . . .

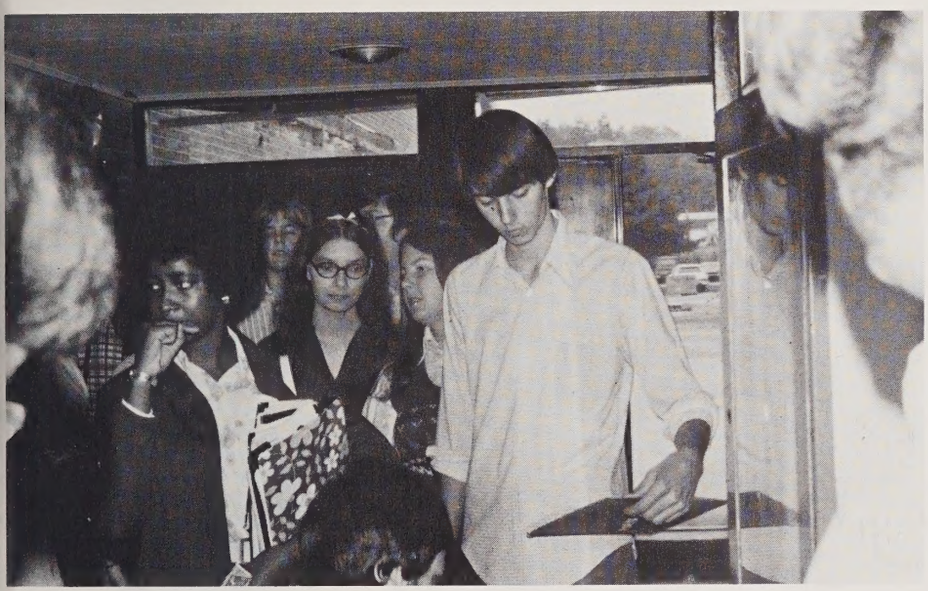
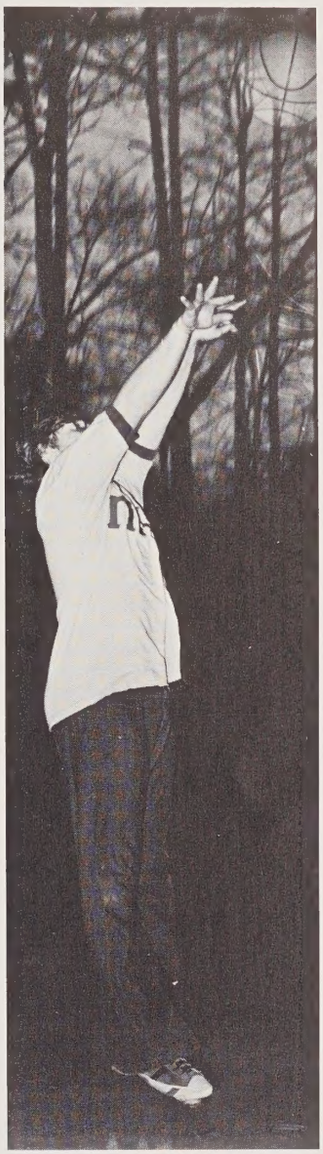
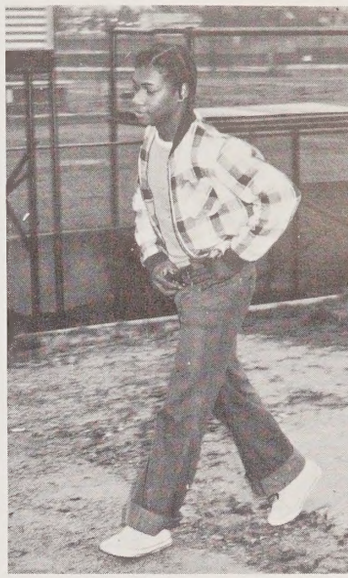
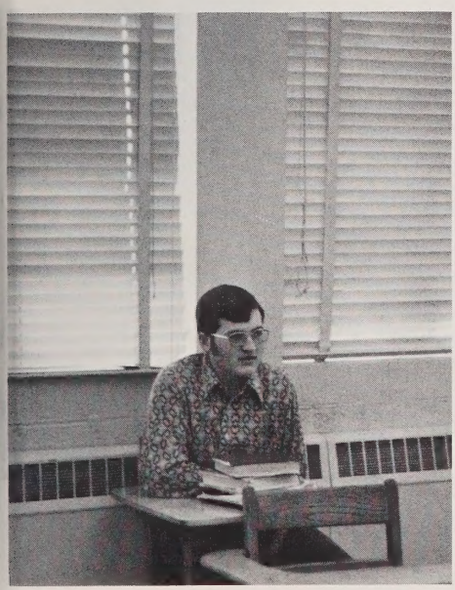
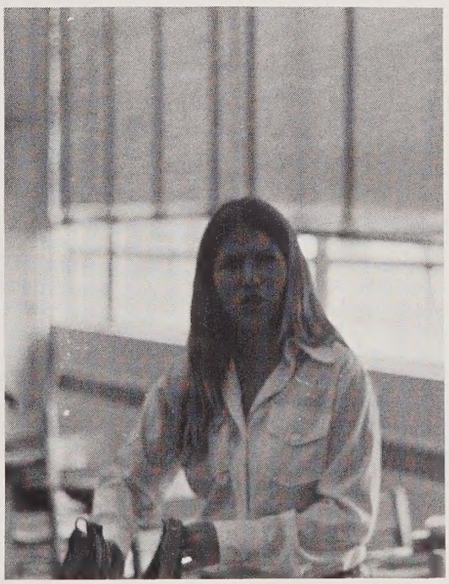
Top left: "Lord, give me a chick. Amen." Top middle: Gullet exercises so that he will be accepted when he enlists. Top right: Dale paces frantically as he ponders how he can make ends meet. Middle left: Buddy rests his weary hand from strenuous autographing. Middle right: When asked about her philosophy of life, Libby retorts crisply, "Live and let die." Bottom left: "Oh, mama, can this really be the end—to be stuck inside a classroom with the Memphis blues again . . . ." Bottom middle: "No, no, no! Crocodiles do NOT have blunt snouts!" Bottom right: Rocky contemplates the Origin of Species.











As this annual year melts into the millennium we call the future, the staff would like to express its hearty appreciation to all humans at Lexington Senior High who participated in our hearty theme—movement—by moving. Hopefully through this theme, this jolly group above has managed to capture a bit of this year between these bright blue covers. Naturally we hope you like and enjoy this year's edition of the Lexicon. However, if you do not, feel free to dump this volume in the nearest trash can and watch the sky for your refund. Farewell.
